

You Wouldn't Put An Old Band On A New Watch

When It's Time for New Brake Linings, Replace the Hardware, too.

There's a lot more to brake hardware than just springs and clips. Yes, brake systems depend on these metal parts for safe, quiet operation. But, they also use bushings, sleeves, insulators and other soft rubber or plastic parts.

Exposure to heat and cold, water, dirt and chemicals wears out all such parts, no matter what they're made of. By the time brake linings need replaced, so does the hardware. That's where Carlson™ comes in.

Easy-to-install Carlson kits contain both the hardware and rubber parts you need for most every brake application. Along with new pads or shoes, they help you to restore your customers' brakes to their original condition and performance—for safe, dependable stops, time after time.

Brake Technicians Count on Carlson for:

- Being first with new applications
- Innovative Quiet Clips™ caliper clips
- Pro Kit™ disc and drum hardware
- OE quality in every hardware kit
